

♥ TOADS

Tadpoles are black

When they get scared, they puff themselves up to make them look bigger!

Their pupils look like this:

NOCTURNAL

Common toad
They have a rugby-ball-shaped lump behind their eye are bigger than

Females ♀
can be 13cm, males 8cm

Common toads have dry, bumpy, warty skin

They can be found in open woodland, hedgerows, grassland and gardens

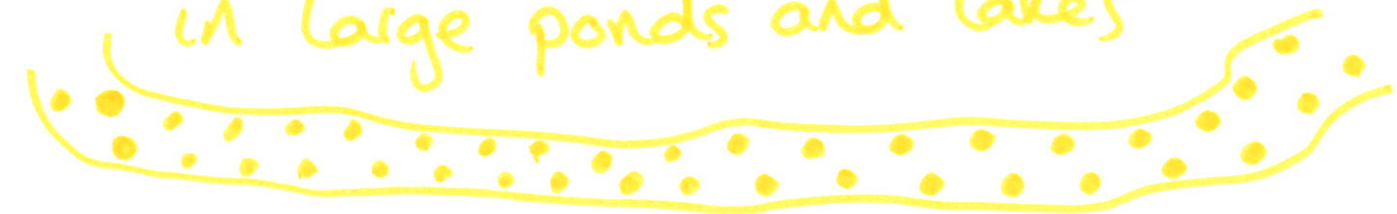

Common Frog! Toad

Toad patrollers are valuers that help toads cross roads

TOADS ARE COOL!

Common Frog
eat slugs, worms, spiders and insects
Toads are only 1cm long
Toadlets are eaten by grass snakes and hedgehogs

Males say: "quark, quark, quark!"
They lay eggs in long strings in large ponds and lakes

They can breathe underwater through their skin

The latin name is: Bufo bufo

Migrate long distances to breeding ponds

They are usual green, brown or grey

Common toads usually return to the pond they were born in to breed

Can be spotted far from water

Often run over on roads

They have golden eyes

Common toads have a skeleton

Common toads

COMMON TOAD

Less common in Scotland
Common in Ireland and Wales
Common in the west of England

Sun → leaves → worms → common toad